

EASTERN GLAMORGAN RECORDING AREA

A DESCRIPTION SPECIES INDEX 2000-2013

This Index is for all the Description Species that have been accepted and published in the Eastern Glamorgan Bird Reports from 2000 to 2013. Only the accepted records from either the British Bird Rarities Committee, Welsh Records Panel, East Glamorgan Rarities Committee (2000-2008) or the Glamorgan Rarities Committee (2009-2013) will be listed. All the species listed in the Index are currently on the D-List and listed as such in the EGBR. All records require notes or good photographs for acceptance from the committees listed above.

Some species formally listed as description species, have now subsequently been removed altogether from the Glamorgan D-List. A selection of these species will appear in the main text marked with an asterisk. Other uncommon species for the recording area will appear in an appendix following the main list.

Instead of the usual summary for each species given in the various reports, this Index will attempt to put each record as a separate and individual entity, as per the original record from the observer and list them accordingly from 2000 onwards. The formula used will be: firstly the species, then the year that record appeared – {in brackets for late records published in future reports}. The date/dates in which the bird was present and finally the site/sites in which it occurred. No observer's names will be given. In certain cases a short comment will appear next to a record, this may signify that the bird is same as previously listed records or some correction has been made in future reports etc.

For species that occasionally have major influxes into the recording area, the first and last dates will be given and records where significant numbers are mentioned. Some sub-species or races that require notes are also mentioned in the systematic list.

All records are sourced from the Eastern Glamorgan Bird Reports [EGBR] 2000-2012, the Glamorgan Bird Club [GBC] Archives & Glamorgan Rarities Committee [GRC] Archives.

This Description Index is only available as a PDF File viewable or as a download from the Glamorgan Bird Club Website.
